Mrs. Harriman Describes Norway Flight

King's Escape From Nazi Bombs Related

U. S. Minister, Hiding In Forests, Saw Norwegian Countryside Despoiled In New German Blitzkrieg.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, 70-year-old United States minister to Norway, has reached Sweden after a four-day flight ahead of German invaders who destroyed two Norwegian towns on her route with incendiary bombs. One bomb struck the hotel at Nybergsund while King Haakon was inside. The King escaped injury. The account of Mrs. Harriman's adventures was obtained at the Swedish border by Arthur Menken, news reel cameraman who acted as a special United Press correspondent.

HOELKEF (HOELJES) Sweden—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States minister to Norway, reported on reaching the safety of the Swedish border after a four-day flight ahead of German invaders that King Haakon VII, 68-year-old Norwegian monarch, had had the narrowest escape from death when German fliers bombed the hotel in which he was staying at Nybergsund.

Mrs. Harriman showed little sign of the ordeal she had undergone since she was routed from bed at 3 a. m last Tuesday by the air raid sirens at Oslo, to speed across country by automobile, sleeping nights in farm houses, hiding in the forests from bombers, and watching the Norwegian countryside despoiled.

After an interview in which she gave me a complete and thrilling account of her experiences, the minister continued to Finskocga, Sweden, where she found quarters in an inn.

Mrs. Harriman said she had crossed the border to make a report to the state department in Washington. She had been unable to find telephone or telegraph facilities in Norway.

Makes Report.

She reached the United States legation in Stockholm by telephone from here, and made her report, to be forwarded to Washington. She plans to return to Norway as soon as possible.

Following is Mrs. Harriman's story in her own words:

"I shall begin with Oslo on Tuesday, April 9.

"After an air raid alarm had awakened me I received a telephone call asking if I could take over the British legation, as German warships were approaching the city. I had the report confirmed and was told the govern-

ERNECKE HANGS

Sedition Trial Defendant's Body Discovered.

NEW YORK — (AP) —Claus Gunther Ernecke, 36, one of 17 defendants on trial in Brooklyn federal court on sedition charges, was found hanged today in the cellar of an apartment building. He had been missing since yesterday when he failed to appear for the trial.

Judge Marcus B. Campbell ordered Ernecke's $7,500 bond forfeited when he failed to appear despite the pleas of his lawyer that he felt the absence was involuntary.

The attorney, former Magistrate Leo Healy, told the court his client had received several death threats and was worried over them.

Healy said today, "I was afraid something like that might happen. He was terribly despondent.

TAILOR SHOT

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Police today investigated the shooting of Ulrich Faeth, 28, found unconscious at his tailoring shop with a head bullet wound. Authorities said two young men, one with a revolver thrust in his belt, were seen in the vicinity.

$1 FINE ENDS BUTLER SCRAP

Coach Held Guilty of Assault; Judge Lectures School Head And Board Member.

Finding Robert Burgett, 25, Butler high school coach, "technically guilty" of assaulting L. L. Miller, Butler baker, on March 20, Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch fined Burgett $1 and costs today following a hearing in municipal court. Costs totaled $19.30

More than 100 Butler residents crowded the courtroom to hear the trial which involved Supt. Willard Weekley of the Butler schools and Walter Wareham, school board member.

"All of you ought to be ashamed of the example you set here today," Judge Kalbfleisch told the trio. "Men of your position should be able to settle your differences without getting involved in something like this."

Burgett, who admitted he "beat up" Miller at Wareham's house following an argument, "probably had a moral right to defend himself, but he is technically guilty," Judge Kalbfleisch said.

Burgett and three witnesses related that Miller came to Wareham's home, where Burgett and Supt. Weekley were visiting, and asked all three of them to go with him to the Butler mayor's office for a "trial."

'Pushed In Face.'

When Supt. Weekley demanded an explanation of what the "trial" was about, Burgett and his witnesses said Miller pushed Weekley in the face and said "Aw, nuts to you."

Then they said Miller struck at Burgett who engaged Miller in a fight on the lawn at the Wareham home, knocking Miller down several times.

Miller denied that he first struck at Burgett and said he sought only to get them down to a hearing to "straighten out rumors" that he had been "circulating gossip about" the school men.

Miller filed assault and battery charges against Burgett, Weekley, and Wareham, but later dropped the charges and brought his action against Burgett alone.

Atty. George H. Blecker represented Burgett and Atty. J. V. Will was counsel for Miller.

Congenial Schmutzler Tells Own Story Of 'Friendly' Strangers Who Slugged Him and Then Fled With $1,140.

By KEN WOODMAN

For 34 years Philip E. Schmutzler, known affectionately to thousands of Mansfielders as "Phil," has been jovially slapping the shoulders of customers at Schmutzler's cafe on North Park street and walking unguarded from the Richland Trust company with funds to cash his customer's checks.

But not any more! He very definitely vowed that today after being the victim of a daylight, downtown holdup.

Yesterday morning two strangers came into the cafe. One of them had a heavy growth of beard and wore a dark brown overcoat. He was in his late thirties. The other wore a tan camel's hair coat.

"He was a nice looking young fellow, about 25 years old," Phil relates. "And when I walked past him on my way out of the place to the bank I thumped him on the shoulder and said: 'Some summer day, isn't it?' "

A half hour or so later, at 10:45 a. m. Phil was coming from the bank with a black leather pouch containing $1,140 under his arm and more money in his pockets. At the corner of Main street and Library court he saw the two men.

"The young fellow stood about a yard away from me," Phil recalls. "He held a black .32 revolver in his left hand and shielded it from passersby by holding the flap of his coat over it with his other hand. The older fellow pushed me against a lamp post and said, 'Give us your money.'

"You've heard people say a gun looks as big as a pickle barrel at a time like that. Well, that gun didn't look big to me. I thought it

RIDES TO FALL

Famous Race Driver's Third Marriage Cracks Up.

LOS ANGELES —(INS)— After 15 years, the third marital venture of Barney Oldfield, pioneer auto racer, was at an end today.

His wife, Hulda B. Oldfield, so revealed in a brief divorce complaint in which she charged cruelty. They were married in 1925.

Oldfield is manager of a country club.

TWO INJURED

One Critically Hurt as Truck, Auto Crash Near Lexington.

Two persons were in the General hospital today with injuries sustained in a head-on automobile collision one mile south of Lexington on U. S. route 42 yesterday afternoon. One was in a critical condition.

As the result of the accident Harold F. Rolf, 43, Cleveland, was arrested on charges of reckless driving. Arraigned in municipal court today, he pleaded innocent and asked for continuance. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch set the hearing for April 27.

Injured are Gad Dennis, 67, and his wife, Anna, 63, both of Middletown. The driver of the car Rollie Eve, 22, and Jenney Dennis, 40, a passenger, received only minor hurts.

Hospital attendants said that Dennis suffered a fractured skull and that his ankle and several ribs were broken. His condition was reported critical.

State highway patrolmen who arrested Rolfe said the accident occurred when he attempted to pass a tractor and trailer and collided head-on with Eve's maching going the opposite direction.

PETERS RITES

TIFFIN—(AP)—Services will be held tomorrow for Mrs. Mary H. Peters, 91, widow of Dr. John A. Peters, former president of Heidelberg college. She died yesterday.

WINTER KEEPS SPRING AT BAY

Cold's Retreat Due to Be Slow Forecast Shows; Storm of 20 Years Ago Recalled.

Playing an overtime engagement with all the vigor of a first night appearance, winter continued today the assault which has sent spring hiding over the greater part of the nation. Temperatures over the winter stricken area ranged from 2 above zero to 44, with Mansfield shivering this morning when thermometers stood at 22 degrees.

The return to normalcy will be slow. The forecast for today and tomorrow is generally fair with little change in temperature.

The average temperature for the past 24 hours has been 23 degrees below normal.

It dropped to 19 during the night, was 22 this morning, and stood at 30 at noon. There were flurries of snow through the night and this morning.

Freakish weather, like history, has a habit of repeating itself, and the old timers with good memories were recalling today that exactly 20 years ago, on April 13, 1920, the temperature on a spring-like day suddenly dropped 30 degrees down to 22 and brought on an ice storm which paralyzed traffic and broke utility wires and trees. The interurban cars running between Mansfield and Cleveland were all from four to five hours behind schedule.

The wintry blast covered most of the United States, but left a freakish belt of extremely hot weather along the lower Pacific coast. Southern California growers mopped their brows under a sweltering temperature of 103. It was over the hundred mark at Anaheim, El Centro and Yuma, and 94 at Los Angeles.

The cold wave took in most of the midwest, stretched eastward to the Atlantic coast, westward to the Rockies, and southward to include the Texas Panhandle, Georgia and Florida. The lowest temperature was at Sidney, Neb., where it hit two degrees above zero.

The central states however, are promised much milder weather by Sunday, or not later than Monday.

PASS THE SPUDS

Truck Driver Buried Under Load of Potatoes.

WAUSEON —(UP)— A truck-train collision last night left F. E. Barry, 36, of Columbus, buried under eight feet of potatoes but he was hurt only slightly.

Barry and a companion were hauling seven tons of potatoes to Columbus from Wauseon when their truck was hit by a Detroit, Toledo & Ironton freight train here.

SHIPS CAPTURED

British Prize Crews Bring Trawlers Into Port.

LONDON —(AP)— Three German ships, captured by the British navy off the Norwegian coast, were taken into northern ports today manned by British prize crews.

The ships were all trawlers, the 393-ton Nordland, the 344-ton Blankenburg, and the 247-ton Friesland.

Allies Turn to Air In Attempt To Oust Nazis

London Reports Bombers Blew Up Bergen Munitions Dump, Attacked Naval Craft and Shot Down Four German Fighting Ships.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(UP)—The official news agency said today that Germans had landed heavy artillery at Trondheim, on the west coast of Norway, on Friday.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM — (UP) — The Norwegian destroyer Draug, 540 tons, has sunk a German transport ship by gunfire near Haugesund, a spokesman for the Norwegian legation announced today. Word of the action came from the commander of the Draug, the spokesman said.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The Exchange Telegraph today quoted the Swedish radio as reporting that the Norwegians had blown up a bridge at Askim, south of Oslo, while German troops were crossing it, killing a great number.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain today acknowledged the loss of 11 bombing planes in attempts to dislodge German troops from Norwegian ports and destroy German naval vessels in the war-torn northern waters.

British fliers succeeded, the British said, in blowing up a munitions warehouse at the German-held port of Bergen, machine-gunning a destroyer and a motor torpedo boat, bombing German transport and supply ships, and shooting down four German Messerschmitt fighters. Two more of these Nazi planes were believed to have been destroyed and others damaged, the air ministry added.

The activities of Britain's powerful navy were clothed, for the moment, in secrecy.

The British announced that eight warplanes were lost in bomber attacks on fleeing German ships, mostly in Kristiansand fjord on the Skagerrak, against "strong opposition." Two more planes were lost at sea on the way home, the admiralty said.

Still another plane was lost in a forced landing in the attack on Bergen.

(Berlin asserted that the British lost 10 planes in the attack on Bergen, and that the Germans lost two there. The Germans said one more British plane was downed at Narvik, but did not mention British losses elsewhere.)

Another bomber formation, flying northward toward Stavanger, gave battle to a large force of German pursuit planes which apparently were assigned to protect the retreating naval vessels.

(DNB, official German news agency, said British bombers also raided Narvik, German-held port in the Arctic, but did no damage yesterday.)

With the sealing of the Baltic sea by a gigantic mine field the British and French allied navies counted on bottling up the remaining German fleet and thus simplifying the job of cutting the life line between Germany and the Nazi forces in Norway.

Reports from Stockholm, Sweden, that the Norwegians were putting up hot resistance against the invaders strengthened the British belief that the Germans soon would be in an untenable position.

Some observers predicted that if the Norwegian adventure went

WARNING: Don't Wager on Allies, Germany Tells Sweden

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Nazi Germany today sharply warned Sweden against "betting on" a British war victory and claimed that the Allies already have suffered a "basic defeat" in Norway.

Announcing the safe landing of German troop reinforcements at Oslo yesterday, the German high command claimed a number of Allied setbacks at sea and in the air, minimizing Nazi losses and asserting that the British had failed in their efforts to aid Norway.

Strictly speaking, the first major phase of the war in Scandinavia is already considered ended, official quarters said, and any new attempt by the British to change the course of events will be frustrated at the outset.

Authentic Nazi quarters accused the Swedish government of "deliberately falling for British propaganda."

"If the Swedes want to bet on England, that is all right with us," a German spokesman said.

"But the responsibility will be theirs if they drive Norway, through false encouragement, along the road of Poland.

"The Swedish announcement that no foreign troops may be landed there does not change the situation in Norway so far as we are concerned. It may change it, however, for the Norwegians."

These same quarters offered as a solution of the present problem a suggestion that King Haakon of Norway appoint as soon as possible a "sound Norwegian government" to negotiate with Germany.

The sporadic resistance being put up by the Norwegian army is

DELAY: Danube Flood Halts Oil Shipments Into Germany

(By International News Service)

BUCHAREST—Spring floods in the Danube river valley today halted vital oil shipments from the Rumanian port of Giurgiu, southwest of Bucharest.

The stoppage was officially described as temporary. Resumption of transport traffic was expected to begin as soon as the floods subside, it was stated.

Reports published abroad describing a rupture in German-Rumanian trade relations and a suspension of freight car loadings for Germany were denied in Bucharest.

(Editors note: A Bucharest dispatch to the London Daily Express said loadings of railroad cars, trucks and oil barges destined to Germany were suddenly suspended last night.

However, Berlin and Budapest messages said only oil transportation on the Danube was suspended because of the flood, which was described in one dispatch as the highest in 60 years.)

Here's Taste of What We Dish Up for Sunday

WITH its editorial finger on the pulse of the community and its photographic eye on Mansfield people and what they are doing, the Sunday edition of the News-Journal brings you a pithy diagnosis of the city and its surrounding territory and a kaleidoscopic picture record of who's who and what's what, in addition to the latest news.

In tomorrow's edition you'll find:

WHY BOYS GO WRONG

From probate court records Staff Writer Virgil A. Stanfield has prepared a survey of child delinquencies in Richland county revealing the kind of homes from which delinquent children come and their social and religious background.

Incorporated in the story are a number of interesting observations drawn from court hearings of delinquency cases as well as several court recommendations for decreasing crime among children.

WHAT THEY'RE UP AGAINST

Just what the citizens' traffic committee and city officials are facing in their campaign to improve Mansfield traffic conditions is summed up by Robert E. Rogers in a story of the causes of congestion and accidents on downtown streets.

PROFILE FROM BROADWAY

John Barrymore takes over Dorothy Kilgallen's column "The Voice of Broadway." He brings you some of his famous "ad libbing" on the life and times of a slightly weary profile.

IT COMES OUT HERE

The first of a series of articles by Jane Williams describes the organizations which participate in the Community Fund. News-Journal photos go along with the stories to picture activities of each group.

Also from Jane Williams' typewriter and the News-Journal camera comes another in the interesting series on What Mansfield Makes. The Mansfield Tire and Rubber company and the Hartman Suspender company hold the spotlight this week.

GERM FREE—FANCY FREE

C. of C. Business Review Shows Marked Upswing Here

FIRST QUARTER FIGURES SHOW RISE OVER '39

Bus Fares Jump 20 Per Cent, Sales Tax Up; Auto Sales Increase 19 Per Cent.

The steady upward swing of business during the first quarter of 1940 was reflected today in the Chamber of Commerce monthly business review which revealed marked increases in all but two classifications over the first three months of 1939.

Topped by a 20 per cent gain in bus fares the increases ranged downward to four per cent gain in mercantile employment. Sales tax figures yesterday disclosed an 18 per cent increase in mercatile business over the first quarter of 1939. Only building valuations and postal receipts skidded below the 1939 level.

Figures compiled from the Mansfield Rapid Transit company's daily reports showed that a total of 756,260 passengers were carried during the first quarter of the year as compared with last year's total of 471,503 paid fares.

New automobile sales showed a 19 per cent increase, the number of new cars sold during the first three months of this year totaling 877, an increase of 224 over the sales during the corresponding period in 1939.

The city's retail trade picked up an 18 per cent increase sales tax receipts disclosed. Richland county's revenue from this source was $127,637, an increase of $20,022 over first quarter receipts last year.

Bank clearings were up approximately $3,000,000. The total for the first quarter period was $22,769,503 as against $19,887,851 last year.

Carloadings soared to 10,932, an increase of 1,281 over the first three months of 1939.

Although nearly 1,000 less persons were employed in Mansfield factories on April 1 than on Feb. 1, employment figures showed that there was about 650 more persons on Mansfield payrolls than at the same time a year ago. The chamber reported a total of 11,587 engaged in mercantile work and industry as compared with 10,934 a year ago.

Building valuations dropped from a three-month total of $698,311 in 1939 to $174,825 during the first three months of this year, chiefly due to a half million dollar school improvement program financed by the board of education last year.

Postal receipts were listed at $87,674 this year as against $96,879 in 1939.

Father Confesses Mercy Killing of His Invalid Son

HOUGHTON, Mich. —(INS)— A heart-broken 53-year-old father, who for 15 years watched with agony as his invalid son grew up, was in the county jail today, confessed "mercy" slayer of the boy.

The father, Abraham White, railroad section hand, was found by sheriff's officers as he wandered aimlessly on the streets of Hancock four miles from his home.

He told Sheriff John A Salmi that while his son was having a convulsion he put the boy's head in a tub of water and held it there until he drowned.

"I'm not sorry I did it," White was quoted as telling the sheriff. "I couldn't stand it any longer—day after day—seeing that poor boy—Oh, my poor Frederick."

The boy, an old child, was unable to walk, speak or see since birth. His body was found in the kitchen of the home by Mrs. White when she returned from visiting relatives. Se called a doctor who notified police.

Farley Bid for Ohio Dem Support Seen

PARTY LEADER SET TO SPEAK AT CINCINNATI

Taft Draws Endorsement of New Jersey Ex-Senator; Dewey Unopposed.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Postmaster General James A. Farley's scheduled appearance in Cincinnati May 10, four days before the primary election, was interpreted today by capital political observers as a bid for second choice consideration from Ohio delegates to the Chicago national convention.

Farley is an avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in the event that President Roosevelt shuns a third term. The unopposed slate of delegates endorsed by the Democratic state organization is committed to Roosevelt and is free to swing to any other candidate if the president says no to re-nomination.

William J. Leonard, Hamilton county Democratic leader, announced Farley's acceptance of an invitation to speak before the Duckworth Democratic club and plans were made immediately to accommodate 2,000 at the dinner in a Cincinnati hotel.

Sponsors of the event made it clear that Farley will appear as head of the Democratic party and not as a presidential candidate. It will mark Farley's only appearance in the Buckeye state before the May 14 primary. He is to speak in Detroit May 11.

Rekindle Interest.

Announcement of Farley's impending visit served to rekindle interest in the primary, only a month away. Until now only few candidates have done much spirited campaigning and the attitude of the public generally has been apathetic. The Democrats are definitely committed to Mr. Roosevelt and the Republicans to U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft.

In New Jersey, where he did not enter the primary, Senator Taft received an important endorsement from former U. S. Sen. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

Thomas E. Dewey was the only GOP presidential aspirant to file in New Jersey, and in boosting Taft, Frelinghuysen said he regretted that Republicans of his state who might prefer another candidate had no means of expressing their preference at the polls.

Discontent.

Rumblings of discontent within the ranks of New York state Republicans which eventually might react to the benefit of Taft were heard from Albany where National Committeeman Kenneth Simpson accused the Dewey managers of attempting a pre-convention "purge" within the party.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mr. and Mrs. John DePue, sr., 182 Reed street, have every reason in the world to remember the super-colossal ice storm of 20 years ago today when the temperature dropped to 22 and blanketed the town with tons of ice. Their son, Ray Edgar, was born on that April 13 and because traffic was almost at a standstill, it was difficult to secure a physician or aid of any kind.

Battery D, 134th F. A. got the "Oscar" again this year for the highest rated National Guard battery in the state after the annual inspection here several weeks ago. The military "Oscar" is merely a rating of "superior", but its the highest approval the National Guard can give. It was the only unit in Ohio to get the superior rating, a precedent which it started last year and followed up this year. Capt. R. J. Nichols, in command of the battery, is accepting applications for recruits as there are five vacancies in the ranks. Applicants must be between 18 and 35 years and unmarried.

The April "shower" of snow and ice Thursday night played havoc with the plans of the Junior Red Cross of Senior high school to collect old papers over the city yesterday. Police advised the Juniors not to collect yesterday afternoon as originally planned because of the icy streets. They'll make the collection next Wednesday, barring another blizzard, and hope that people who called them this week will keep their old papers until the Juniors can call for them.

When a newsboy lost a dime in the county commissioners' office this morning, the commissioners almost turned the office upside down trying to find it. The reason was that the boy wanted his dime and wouldn't accept a substitute from the county officials until they could find it. After a long search, Commissioner C. L. Mitchell discovered the lost coin in the opposite side of the room from the spot where they had been looking.

BAR BROWDER

Oberlin Refuses Permission For Communist Speech.

OBERLIN — (U.P.) — President Ernest Hatch Wilkins of Oberlin College has announced that Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, will not be permitted to fulfill a speaking engagement at the college next Tuesday.

Browder has been convicted of falsifying his American passport application, but has appealed.

President Wilkins in a letter to the Oberlin Review, student publication, said that "Oberlin college would not extend the privilege of speaking in its halls to any man under legal indictment or conviction." He added that the ban would apply also against "anyone else similarly convicted."

The Review criticised the president's position in an editorial which said:

"Circumvention was used to bring Al Capone to the bar but no public opposition ensued because Capone was rather obviously guilty of crimes much worse than income tax evasion. Mr. Browder's only other 'crime' is that he is a Communist. Although membership in the Communist party is legal, little public opposition can be expected to Mr. Browder's muzzling."

Not That It Matters

Is Nye Right---Are We In War Already? Problem of Youth Deserves Our Help

—By JANE WILLIAMS

WE ARE in the war already," Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota writes in this week's issue of a national magazine, and cites facts and gives pictures to prove it. We are in the war up to our necks both financially and morally, he says, and the only thing we haven't done as yet is to send troops across. . .

A Mansfield young man with a brilliant future bought an expensive make of car this spring. "I want to ride around in the best car I can buy this year" he said grimly, "because I know that by this time next year I'll be riding in an army car." . . .

This feeling that the war of Europe is closing in on us, despite the "wishful thinking" of millions of Americans to the contrary, is not without basis. Our present foreign policy, our alleged "neutrality," the type of men we have for our ambassadors and their illy concealed sympathy for one set of belligerents, the attitude of the administration itself—all have a tendency to instill grave doubts in our minds as to whether we can keep out of the war.

IT IS A very human weakness to "take sides" in the controversy, and yet I wonder how many individuals would be willing to "take sides" if they knew that such partiality might spill the blood of an American boy? Are your convictions so strong on one side of the conflict, or the other, that you would be willing to send a son, a husband or a brother, over there to fight for that conviction? Mine aren't.

It seems to me that America owes far more to the world than to finance and fight its regular and recurring wars. The greatest contribution we could possibly make to the world is to show it that the American way of life and government is the best way. Not to force it on them, mind you, as Communists and Nazis are trying to force their philosophy on other countries, but rather to point the way by good example.

But in order to do that we must set our own house in order; we must demonstrate that a democracy is the one successful political ideology under which individuals can live and be happy.

"Make the world safe for democracy!" was the cry that took two million American boys into the European war in 1918. Why can't we change that slogan to "Make democracy safe for the world" and keep our boys at home?

AND don't be too sure that the politicians and the pop-offs can get us into another war. Strangely enough the boys who answered that 1918 slogan now make up a powerful organization that constitutes a bulwark against our entering the present war—the American Legion. A news story this week stated the Legion will have a million members at the end of this month. The organized opinion of a million men can't be overlooked, and the Legion is definitely opposed to our entering the war under any circumstances.

THIS week Senior high school student representatives asked Mayor W. J. Locke to consider their problem. They want a place to dance at night, and either the city or civic organizations to finance a "liquorless night club."

It's been quite a spell now since young folks depended upon their own resources for their recreation, and there's no use holding up the taffy-pulling days as an example for them. They just don't care for taffy-pulls these days. They wanna dance and you can't dance without making a lot of noise. Therefore they can't dance in residential districts because citizens who go to bed at 10 o'clock have their rights too.

So the problem is: where can they have a dance place where they can make all the noise they like as late as they like; and secondly, how can they finance such a proposition on the sale of soft drinks and candy bars?

Some of Mansfield's best welfare agencies—such as the Visiting Nurses, and Friendly House and playgrounds—were started and maintained for several years through private contributions and personal effort, and then when they had demonstrated their worth to the community they were taken over either by the city or the Community Fund.

If the boys and girls are willing to work for what they want, instead of asking the city to do it for them, they certainly would find a lot of people willing to aid them—especially among their parents.

ISN'T anything sacred? Comes the announcement through Variety that Capt. Billy Bryant, skipper of the oldest—and probably the only—showboat on the Ohio river is going modern this summer.

Cap'n Billy's boat, which was the inspiration for Edna Ferber's novel and Ziegfeld's musical play "Showboat," has been playing the Ohio river towns, along the West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois shore lines for more than 40 years. He has refused every offer of the big time producers to move into New York harbor, refused many radio offers, because he loves the Ohio river and the traditions of the old showboats.

But he is slipping. He has just announced that he will run the showboat this summer on the "guest" policy, and will pay $1,000 a week for the biggest names of Broadway and Hollywood. Among them probably will be George M. Cohan, who has given Cap'n Billy permission to use any of the Cohan plays. Undoubtedly a lot of "big names" will take the offer just for the fun of playing on a showboat.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Gloria Jean sat on the sidelines back of the camera and knitted attentively. She looked very demure in an old-fashioned long dress—Empire model, I believe they call it—of flowered white material, but her blue eyes crinkled mischievously when she smiled.

"I think he's wonderful," she said. "Just wonderful!"

Now what's wonderful about Bing Crosby, I wondered.

"Oh, oh—himself!" Gloria fumbled, but finished triumphantly. "He's wonderful to work with. So is Mr. (David) Butler—he's a wonderful director."

She knitted away, on a pink sweater—for her doll, her biggest doll. Just 12, Gloria's enthusiasm for Bing Crosby, her co-star in "If I Had My Way," has done nothing to her passion for dolls.

"Between us," she said, "I think we have about 35 dolls—all kinds, all sizes."

"Us" is Gloria and her three sisters—Sally, 15; Lois, 10, and Bonnie, 4. Lois is Gloria's stand-in, and a sweet child in her own right. Lois writes music. She doesn't mind being Gloria's stand-in—she loves it. She asked for the job, and their mother, Mrs. Ferman H. Schoonover, warned her in advance about the grief it would be. Things like standing aside while Gloria took the bows, the flowers, the praise, the gifts. Lois was sure it wouldn't be any grief, and she took the job. She still loves it. The children all know, says Mrs. Schoonover, that they're equally loved by their parents, and there's no sides-taking just because one of them is in pictures. But back to Gloria—and Bing.

"I don't kiss Bing in the picture—but he kisses me, and that's just as nice," said Gloria. "He's wonderful.

"At home we play games, Lois and Bonnie and I. We like to play dentist now. We go in the bathroom and spread a towel on the seat and lay out all the tools we can find—dentist-looking things like mother's eye-brow tweezers. You know. We have lots of fun. Somehow I don't care much for reading books, but I do have a favorite book. "It's The Secret Garden.' Oh, how I love it—do you know I've read that book all the way through TWICE!

"My money? Oh, they're saving it for me. I don't have an allowance. I just ask them when I want some money.

"I take singing lessons, but I don't go to drama school. They say they want me to be myself, and that's what I try to do.

"I love premieres. Usually I go to bed at 7:30, but I've been to premieres." She tossed that off like an inveterate premiere-goer, but then: "Well, I've been to Deanna's—isn't she wonderful?—and I went to my own in Scranton (Pa.) It was so thrilling.

"There's El Brendel. He's going to be locked in an ice-box in the picture, and come out covered with icicles. I think Mr. Brendel is WONDERFUL, don't you?"

Yeah, Gloria. And I think you're wonderful, too.

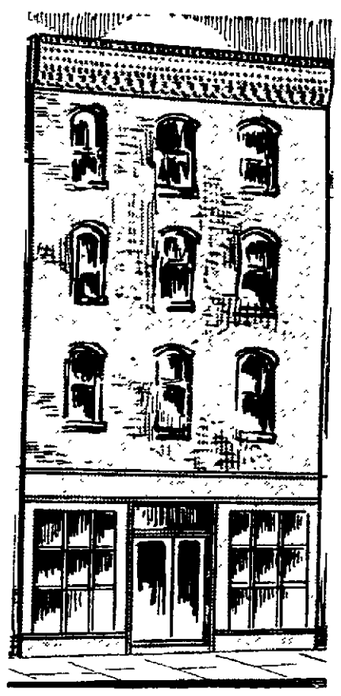
THE BASIC AND CONTROLLING FACTOR BEHIND THIS GREAT STORE

Since 1865

It is a wealth of fine old traditions that cause people to cherish, respect and cling fast to time-honored institutions. Other things may change, may lose their lustre or vanish entirely with the passing of the years, but the traditions of old progressively conservative institutions stand out above this shining scene.

What are these traditions and how have they come into being? They are the basic ideals upon which these institutions were founded, now solidified and crystalized by unswerving adherence through successive generations. Time has incorporated them as integral parts of the institutions.

The same process is found in the evolution of great social and commercial institutions as well. The ideals which inspired founders and drew our Mothers and Grandmothers to Schroer's as far back as 1865 and the traditions formed by seventy-five years of unshaken fidelity with the ideals of courtesy, quality, genuine worth and fair dealing remain unchanged.



The spirit and ideals have now become traditions, but a business that never ventures from the beaten path cannot develop its full possibilities. Real progress begins where rules leave off. The follower cannot be the leader. The store that would grow and prosper in an impressive way must set the pace.

Today the entire business world is readjusting itself to meet the conditions of a new period. We, too, find it necessary—compulsory, if you please — to readjust our stocks to meet with today's existing condition.

1865 1940

With this thought uppermost in our mind, we are making plans and preparations for the greatest sale in the seventy-five years of our business life—a store-wide sacrifice of fine furniture—our entire and complete stock without reserve.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 13, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—better be a little late than to land in a hospital or morgue.

The weather is seldom bad enough to keep people away from anything except church services.

Complaint is being made that inaccuracies appear on some of the new commemorative postage stamps—but this is one of the minor causes for worry just now.

Banditry On Main Street

SUCH a daylight holdup and robbery as occurred on uptown Main street yesterday is another of the indications that Mansfield is taking on some "big city" attributes that are not particularly desirable.

When such affairs are read about, as having happened in some other city, they attract little attention, but when it is realized that they can occur right here in Mansfield that's an entirely different matter.

It cannot be doubted that, in this instance, the robbery—and the victim thereof—had been decided upon in advance and the act carefully planned and timed to coordinate with Mr. Schmutzler's trip to the bank for currency to meet payday requirements for cashing checks, which has long been a custom in his place of business.

Such a crime, with the violence that it involved, has been a rare occurrence in Mansfield and sets up a new line of thinking in regard to the need for more patrolmen—which had heretofore been argued principally in connection with traffic law enforcement.

While it appears quite likely, under the circumstances, that the perpetrators of this crime cannot long avoid apprehension and punishment, the startling fact cannot be escaped that such things "can happen here," and that policing should be on that basis—also that caution should be exercised by persons carrying considerable sums of money between business places and banks.

Help for Youth Helps All

AN IMPORTANT aim of the National Youth Administration is to train for steady employment the young people about ready to leave the schools and colleges. It is one of the most useful and constructive works that could be done at this time.

Despite many fears and accusations that the boys and girls approaching graduation from the public schools have the idea that the world owes them everything and they owe it nothing, most of them are eager for work and ask only the chance to be self-supporting and get ahead in life. The difficulty they find almost insurmountable is not being allowed to prove their worth. They are refused jobs because they lack skill or experience.

If the N. Y. A. and other organizations can supply these deficiencies they will benefit the young folks, of course, but they will benefit employers and all of society just as much. These boys and girls are needed as useful and happy citizens, sharing in the nation's life and promoting its prosperity.

Women Think More About Politics

WOMEN were rather slow getting into politics, but they are making up for it now. This year's campaign will probably make a record, as regards feminine participation.

It started with the election to congress of Frances P. Bolton of Cleveland, to succeed her husband after his death. Now there is further progress in Ohio along this line, as Mrs. Robert A. Taft takes the stump along with her husband to help him campaign for the presidential nomination. Many women are running for local, state and federal offices in various states.

It would contribute greatly to the interest of the presidential contest if Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey would follow Mrs. Taft's example. But Mr. Dewey so far persists in his announced determination to "do all the talking for his family in politics."

More Forest Restoration

DURING the last five years the tree planting of the United States forest service has averaged more than 160,000 acres a year. This spring the planted area will exceed a million acres. That sounds like a lot of trees, but the forest service estimates there are still about three and a half million acres of national forest land in need of planting, primarily because fires have destroyed the forest cover, leaving no seed trees for natural reproduction.

The government will never be "all planted up," because there probably always will be some fires to make serious inroads on the forests. But the reckless waste of forests by human beings has been curtailed. Even privately owned forest land is used more scientifically, and individuals and communities now do considerable reforesting.

It will be a long time before we can compensate for wiping out forests in the rapid growth of the country, but there is assurance that the trend is in that direction rather than continuing destruction.

Missionary Work Goes Modern

A CHINESE leader named Kung Sam Lee, a stock broker converted to Christianity, is telling Americans a strange story. Christian propaganda, he says, is sweeping through China today more effectively than ever before. It is handled in a very different way from the old type of missionary work. It is done by radio, and this will soon be the chief use to which radio is put in the world's most populous country.

Broadcasting from Shanghai and other cities, Mr. Lee says, he and his associates, along with the Christian government of Chiang Kai Shek, are spreading the faith in a far more effective way than the missionaries have ever been able to do with the old methods.

And how can the impoverished Chinese take advantage of this broadcasting? They are equipped with little crystal sets such as were used in America in the infancy of broadcasting. They require no battery and cost only 40 cents, and millions of Chinese already have them. Soon, Mr. Lee says, there will be tens of millions listening to the gospel.

Asking divorce, the wife of a garage employe complains that he won't wash after coming home from work, which causes the Youngstown Vindicator to chortle: "Oily to bed and oily to rise."

These who contend that "life begins at 40" are complaining that Dewey still has two years to go.

Freedom of speech is the American safety valve.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Usually the most intriguing aspect of a Broadway First Night to visitors is the ebullient display of personalities in attendance, but actually the regular first night audience is similar to a stock company of actors who arrive at the same time and go through the same motions at every premiere during the season.

The personnel of a premiere night audience hardly ever varies at all. I would say at least two-thirds of the crowd are always the same. The answer to this is that first night tickets are exceptionally hard to get, and one must be a critic, or a friend of the producer, the author, or of someone in the play to receive any recognition at all. Even the author has to pay for his own seats, if he wishes to attend, and the actors always must pay for any guests who are out front cheering for them.

AMONG the regular first nighters is Dr. Jerome Wagner, husband of Norma Terris, who played the lead in "Show Boat" and sang that wistful, beautiful Kerns melody, "Why Do I Love You?" Kitty Watts, mother of Dick Watts, the Herald-Trib critic, is always present, invariably with her son. . . . Hope Hampton and her husband, Jules Brulatour, who owns the patents from which motion picture film is made, seldom miss an opening. Dr. Nathaniel Lief, the song writing dentist, is a first night fixture and usually sits with Bob Coleman, Mirror critic, or one of the other critics.

Kelcey Allen, critic for "Women's Wear," who has been covering first nights on Broadway longer than any of the other reviewers, is invariably on hand passing out gumdrops, a confection for which he has great admiration. Another gumdrop fancier and inveterate first nighter is John Bryan, the Paramount talent scout who used to write a drama column for the N. Y. Times. Mandelstam, the Wall street broker who promotes summer camps for hundreds of New York's sidewalk kids every year, is there, and so is Mrs. Katzenburg, who has sat in the first row for every first night performance on Broadway the last 15 years. Her husband is a corset manufacturer, and generally he is with her.

THERE is an actors' agent whose name may not be mentioned, but who is always in attendance, and thereby hangs a paragraph. He represents some of the greatest box-office names on Broadway. He always has with him a ravishing blonde, but he never arrives with the same girl twice. If there are four openings in one week, he will arrive with a different blonde each night.

The thing that has endeared him to the columnists is that whoever the girl happens to be, she always arrives in the same ermine coat that he keeps especially for his first night girls.

There are about 30 first string critics sitting in on every opening, and these critics have the same seats year in and year out. This is a clamitous item for those who make a practice of pilfering theater tickets. Every now and then some misguided zaney unwittingly lifts a pair of reviewer ducats, not knowing that tickets aren't necessary for the critic anyway, as he will be passed to his regular seats whether he can produce the tickets or not. When he can't, the doorman waits for the pilferer to show up with them, calls the manager, and then a little scene takes place. The usual alibi is "I found 'em."

INNOCENT VICTIMS

Serious Moral Recession Seen

By GUS W. DYER,
Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

NO NATION, it has been said, has ever gone down from lack of intelligence. The prime cause of the fall of civilization is in the field of morals rather than of intellect. The chief responsibility of the president of the United States is his moral responsibility. His chief obligation is to uphold, protect and defend the highest conceptions of justice, fair play, honesty and truth in all the relationships of the government with the people.

The rank and file of the people do not think. In moral standards as well as elsewhere they follow leaders. Those who support the chief executive and others are inclined to accept the ethical standards of the president as sound whether they understand them or not. They assume that the president of the United States would not mislead the people on an ethical question.

The statement is published that the Democratic national committee has raised a total of $940,145 from the sale of advertising in and the purported sale of copies of their 1936 convention book. Many of these books that have little or no value, autographed by President Roosevelt, were sold at $250 a copy to large corporations, including those corporations that receive contracts from the government. Some of the corporations made out checks to the National Democratic committee for sums as high as $5,000 and $10,000 for copies of this book of great "political value."

THE ruse of collecting large sums from big corporations by the National Democratic committee whose chairman is a member of the President's cabinet, by the sale of a worthless book, is explained by the fact that under the Corrupt Practices Act—note the title of the law—it is unlawful for any corporation to contribute to national political parties. The fake sale of the "convention book" autographed by the president was the crude, puerile means devised by which the corporations could be enticed to violate a federal law and escape conviction. Possibly the idea was gotten from the negro bootleggers who sold two peanuts for 25 cents and gave the purchaser a drink of whisky.

The prime function of the government is to see to it that the laws of the land are respected and obeyed. The first obligation on those in charge of the government is to set a worthy example in all their activities of respect for law and deference to it.

The sanctity of law is the very foundation of stable government. But in this "political book sale" scheme, we see the highest representatives of the government leading, enticing and persuading corporations to subvert the Corrupt Practices Act and make large gifts to the administration's political organization.

THIS successful experience of the administration will be wonderfully suggestive to those unethical corporations that are seeking to evade the laws. The Democratic committee has demonstrated to them how it can be done. Blackmailers might also get some helpful suggestions here. Instead of extorting money from the victim on a brutal threat of exposure, the blackmailers might sell him a book on "exposure" for the amount demanded. A large part of the crime of the country may be traced to attempts to evade and subvert the law. Those who are attempting to "get by" this way can learn much from the "book sale ruse."

The grossly unethical, immoral nature of this plan to collect money from corporations for political purposes does not appear on the surface. The government never before had such power to injure business as it has today. Hence it is to the interest of those in charge of corporations to keep on the best terms possible with those in charge of the government.

As those in charge of corporations look forward to the day when the "book agents" turn in their report to the "higher ups," showing who came across and who refused, the "urge" to buy a book can hardly be resisted.

It is not necessary for the book agents to make any promises. The solicitation of the gift is itself interpreted as a promise.

A moral recession is far more serious than an economic recession.

Health and Diet

Doctor's Reward Greater Than Money.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

TODAY I want to review briefly two new books on medical subjects.

The Medical Career, and Other Papers, by Harvey Cushing. (Little, Brown & Company, 1940).

"I read of a doctor who was summoned in the middle of the night to the bedside of a poor fellow whom he found apparently strangling to death. In the dim light of a coaloil light held unsteadily by the dying man's wife he succeeded, by opening a large abscess in the back of the man's throat, in saving his life; and he thus describes his own reaction to this episode:

"'Happy? As I drove homeward that night I doubt if even a Methodist evangelist who has just defrauded the devil of his legitimate prey by converting the wickedest man in town, or a criminal lawyer who has snatched a millionaire murderer from the gallows, could possibly feel more jubilant and uproarious. Incidentally, about six months later I collected four dollars for that job. I felt a little bit ashamed of accepting it, for I had already been so richly, so magnificently paid in the pleasure the experience gave me'."

Thus that great humanist, the founder of physiological surgery, attested to his ultimate faith in the human needs of medical practice.

Ready, of course, he was to adapt all science to those ends:

"Rontgen could hardly have dreamed that his discovery would revolutionize our methods of diagnosis; the Curies that radium would prove to be an effective agent in combating certain kinds of malignant tumors; or Faraday that his alternating current would some day be utilized in place of the scalpel to make dissection of a relatively bloodless procedure."

These excerpts from Dr. Harvey Cushing's lately published posthumous volume of essays remind us heavy hearted, that we will hear no more the expressions of that luminous faith.

Faiths That Healed, by Ralph H. Major, M. D. (D. Appleton-Century Company).

In this book Doctor Major describes some medical miracles, alleged or false, and gives an explanation of the way they happen. The subjects range from an examination of the miracles at Lourdes, St. Vitus' dance, the Pied Piper of Hamelin, the case of Therese Neumann, the peasant girl of Bavaria, who has gone without food since 1926; the faith healing of F. F. Quimby, John Alexander Dowie and Valentine Zeiler, to a scholarly consideration of witchcraft and its medical implications.

St. Vitus' Dance today is the disease which we call "chorea." It affects only young people. It is an infectious disease, and manifests itself by symptoms of lack of control of the muscles. But the real dance of St. Vitus was a mania of the Middle Ages, probably hysterical in character.

The Shrine of St. Vitus is in Saverne in the Vosges Mountains in Alsace. St. Vitus, a Roman nobleman converted to Christianity, suffered martyrdom and his relics were discovered to be capable of performing miracles, especially in cases of demoniacal possession. For that reason the victims of the dance mania in the year 1518 were ordered to be taken to the chapel of St. Vitus, where they were healed.

Doctor Major treats of the subjects in his book with the sure knowledge of a trained clinician. The language is simple and does not require a medical education for its understanding.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Like a Double-Edged Sword."

The person who cannot stay his venomous speech is frequently said to have a tongue like a double-edged sword—a tongue, that is, which cuts both ways—both the user and him against whom the invective is used.

This is an expression which comes to us from the Bible, but strange indeed is the change that has come about in its meaning in the travels from its source.

The line is apparently patterned after Revelation 1:16.

"And out of his mouth went a sharp two-edged sword."

The reference was to Jesus Christ and the "two-edged sword," an allusion to the divine power of condemnation and punishment which went side by side with the power to save.

Words of the Wise

Three things too much, and three too little are pernicious to man: to speak too much and know little: to spend much, and have little: to persume much, and be worth little.—Cervantes.

Listen, World!

Hurt?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU'RE HURT. There's that deal you didn't put over. There's that humiliation you can't forget. And that broken dream. And that grave you're still kneeling beside, after all these years.

I know, my dear. I know, because I've failed too. And I too have borne the scarlet welts of humiliation . . . and seen my dreams go by . . . and torn myself with terrible effort from a slender grave.

You know. And I know. And if we but have the sense to see it, there is God's answer—and His compensation—for all we have endured. There is the reason for pain—and the blessing for those who dare take it. For pain is the way to "knowing." It is our only common language. It is the gateway into each other's soul.

Do you remember that Last Supper which was the Passover of the Jews, at which Christ broke the bread in token of His everlasting bond with the hearts of men? Ever since the world began men have fumbled in their rituals toward some symbol of such a bond . . . never realizing that their own tears were the bitter bread broken in token of their everlasting community with other lives.

Think of your tears that way, my dear. Think of your hunger and heartbreak as bitter bread to be eaten with all other souls. Do not let yourself be strangled by the terrible stupidity of self pity.

Do not stagnate in the thought that your agony is greater than any one else's. Open your mind and your heart to the realization that sorrow is God's way of growing up . . . and growing near to all the rest of the world.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

FEWER than half the delegates both to the Republican and Democratic national conventions are chosen by popular vote. Most states pick theirs in party conventions or committees.

Pre-convention interest centers, nevertheless, on the 16 states that are holding presidential primaries.

For only there have the people—who'll make the final choice next November—a direct voice in the selection of nominees.

This week's primaries starred—

Illinois: In a Democratic popularity contest, not necessarily binding on the delegates, President Roosevelt romped over Vice President Garner, 6 to 1. On the Republican ballot, New York prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey was unopposed.

Nebraska: Roosevelt, who hadn't said yet whether he wanted a third term, ran alone. And Dewey, repeating his performance last week in Wisconsin, out-pointed Michigan's U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, 4 to 3.

So What?

Interpretations varied. The Republican race, some said, would narrow to a "stop-Dewey" contest. Ohio's U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft, who hasn't entered any primaries against the Manhattan racket-buster, was mentioned as a likely coalition contender. Vandenberg, however, was not counted out.

Wise men agreed the Democratic nomination was Roosevelt's for the asking. But Garnerites said the anti-Roosevelt vote was big enough to warn the president that, even though nominated, he was no cinch for November. Third-termers replied by pointing out that Roosevelt's Illinois vote was bigger than Garner's and Dewey's combined.

In sideshows to the main event in Nebraska, Democratic U. S. Senator Edward Burke was defeated for renomination by Gov. R. L. Cochran, and Republican Hyde Sweet was elected to Congress to fill a vancy. In Illinois, Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, self-proclaimed "acting governor," lost the Democratic nomination for governor to ailing Gov. Henry Horner's protege, Harry B. Hershey.

Congressional Record.

The Senate okayed a House-proposed extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act to 1943; asked the budget bureau how it proposes to reduce the capital of federal loan agencies by $700,000,000.

The House approved a $785,000,000 army appropriation, $65,000,000 under the president's budget; voted contempt citations against three Communists for refusing to answer questions before the Dies Committee; defeated a bill for court removal of misbehaving federal judges.

The President vetoed a bill to broaden the list of offenses for which aliens can be deported.

At Home

Philatelic Flurry.

Residents of Jefferson, Ga. (pop. 2,000), puffed out their chests this week when the U. S. issued a stamp honoring a former resident, Dr. Crawford W. Long, for performing the first operation with the aid of ether in 1842.

But in the Hall of Fame at New York University, Dr. William Morton—though he didn't perform a major operation till 1846—is honored as the discoverer of general anesthesia. His daughter-in-law harried Postmaster General Farley and officials of the American Medical Association with demands that her father-in-law's name be "cleared."

Court Report.

From 1935 to last March 1, the NLRB reported this week, it handled 26,416 cases involving 5,883,859 workers. Half were settled by agreement of both parties. One that was not involved 9,000 men NLRB ordered Republic Steel Corporation to reinstate, with back pay, following CIO's 1937 strikes against the "little steel" companies. The Supreme court refused this week to review that case, leaving in effect a circuit court decision sustaining the order. Republic, meanwhile, was suing CIO and its affiliates for $7,500,000 damages.

Doushka's Downfall.

A black and white polka-dot fur rug—the only one of its kind—is being made in New York. Last week the pelt stretched over Doushka, a rare Siberian snow leopard of Ringling Brothers circus. The day before the show opened a jealous understudy, an Indian leopard named Indo, promoted himself by strangling Doushka.

Abroad

War Moves North.

Some nations go to war; others have it thrust upon them.

Norwegians entered their last war 133 years ago when their rocky, fjord-pierced nation sided with Napoleon. Swedes fought on the other side, and ever since have preferred smorgasbord to sieges. Europe's butter-and-egg-men, the Danes, did their last fighting when they lost land to Prussia in 1864.

Only six European nations managed to stay out of the World war. The three Scandinavians were among them. And when Russia assaulted nearby Finland four months ago, they successfully held their tempers.

This week, war was thrust upon Scandinavia.

Who did the thrusting was a matter of dispute between Nazis and Britons. But it was clear enough that the land of the Vikings had been commandeered as a German-Allied battleground.

Maps And Movies.

Round 1. When U. S. fact-hunter Sumner Welles talked with French officials last month, photos of one meeting showed a European map in the background. Nazis whooped that the map depicted a "whittled-down" Germany as the Allies' war aim. Welles said he hadn't noticed the map; the French said the map had been retouched by a magazine artist.

Round 2. British propagandists answered by hauling out an alleged German "secret map" which they said had been seized in Czecho-Slovakia's Sudentenland in 1938. It showed how—by successive grabs each half year or so—the Nazis planned to swallow most of Europe by 1948.

Round 3. Nazis invited foreign diplomats and military men (including Americans) to a film preview, "Baptism of Fire." It recorded Germany's aerial smashing of Poland. Field Marshal Goering's voice boomed from the screen that his air force thus proved "in Poland that it could do what it promised. . . . That promise will now be kept in France and England."

Science

Shock Absorber.

Always good for a chill in those South American jungle films is the unseen headhunter who picks off white folks with his poisoned arrows. The poison, a drug called curare, comes from the bark of a tropical shrub. Victims die because their motor nerves are paralyzed.

Curare is helpful, a Topeka doctor told the American College of Physicians in Cleveland last weekend, in the shock treatment for insanity. Metrazol, a heart stimulant, is used to inflict the shock. But metrazol throws patients into such violent convulsions that bones are often fractured. By partially paralyzing the nerves with a weak solution of curare, the violence can be softened.

'Pass The Grass.'

Vitamins, essential to normal growth, exist in minute quantities in natural foodstuffs. Most people get theirs from fruits and vegetables. They might get them in handier form, the American Chemical society heard this week in Cincinnati, from grass.

Twelve pounds of it, a trio of Kansas City chemists reported, would provide more vitamins than the 340 pounds of fruits and vegetables the average person eats in a year. Powdered, it could be added to other foods in cooking. And it wouldn't even turn them green, for the color can be washed out during processing.

Sky Show.

Through smoked glasses, amateur and professional astronomers throughout the U. S. scanned the sky last Sunday afternoon. To those along a 150-mile belt from Del Rio, Tex., to Jacksonville, Fla., the sun appeared as a fiery hoop surrounding a black polka-dot. Elsewhere it looked like a quarter, half or three-quarters moon. This annular, or ring, eclipse was caused by the moon passing between the sun and the earth too far out to hide the sun completely. Such a phenomenon won't again be visible in these parts till 1994.

People

Whitney To Wright.

Wednesday was the 150th anniversary of the U. S. patent law, which gives inventors exclusive rights to their gadgets for 17 years. Of 1,500,000 patents that have expired, and thus become public property, a committee of scientists this week listed the 19 "greatest." Three—the phonograph, incandescent lamp and motion-picture projector—sprang from the brain and laboratory of one man, Thomas A. Edison. Some others: Eli Whitney's cotton gin (1794), Elias Howe's sewing machine (1846), the Wright brothers' airplane (1906).

Recipe For Dictatorship.

A successful dictator, Nebraska University's Prof. J. O. Hertzler writes in the current American Sociological Review, must be: diabolically clever, arrogant, intriguing, unscrupulous, strategic, fanatically idealistic, realistic and adept at snatching advantages. "He must always act as if an emergency existed." When his regime starts wobbling, he must (1) found a dynasty, (2) skip the country or (3) succumb to his own device, liquidation.

CITY'S GARDEN CLUBS IN REGULAR SESSION

Name Delegates to Attend Ohio Garden Club Meeting In Cleveland Next Month; Robert Newcomb Speaks.

IT DIDN'T seem very spring-like yesterday, and it certainly took a far-sighted outlook on life in general to attend a garden club meeting, but Friday was the day for sessions of the city's garden groups, and nearly all in town met.

The 22 members in attendance answered to roll call by giving the names of spring flowers. During the business session, plans were made to attend a meeting of the Garden Clubs of Ohio at Higbee's store in Cleveland on May 1 and 2, at which time a course on "Flower and Garden Appreciation" will be presented. "The Authority on Authorities"

ALL ROADS MISS ROME

Even if everybody learned the same bidding system, you would still find plenty of variation in the way it was used, because of two factors. People themselves are different, and so interpret the same thing differently at any one time. Furthermore, any one person varies from time to time. With a certain hand and in a certain situation, he will make one bid one day and a different one the next. His mood, his physical condition, his mental processes, his temperament, are not exactly alike any two times.

	♠ A J 10 6 4 ♥ None ♦ J 6 3 ♣ A Q 10 7 4
♠ 9 7 2 ♥ 10 8 7 4 2 ♦ 9 7 4 2 ♣ J	N. W. E. S.	♠ 5 ♥ A K 6 ♦ K Q 10 8 5 ♣ 8 6 3 2
	♠ K Q 8 3 ♥ Q J 9 5 3 ♦ A ♣ K 9 5

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

Everybody bid this hand differently at all tables of a duplicate game, all but two pairs reaching 6-Spades, but all of them missing the grand slam which is in the cards. Instead of all roads leading to Rome, as per the old prescription, all of them missed Rome. Here are some of the variations:

1—
East	South	West	North
1 ♦	1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠
2 ♦	3 ♦	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	6 ♠
2—
East	South	West	North
1 ♦	Dbl	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	4 ♦	Pass	6 ♠
3—
East	South	West	North
1 ♦	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	4 ♦	Pass	6 ♠

Perhaps we might as well admit it is pretty hard to get to a grand slam after an opponent has opened the bidding, especially if he holds an ace-king in addition to a good suit. Even the Blackwood convention could not help much on this hand. Several of the pairs were using it, but none tried it on this deal.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If you are using the Blackwood slam convention, and the bidding has started with your 1-Spade and your partner's 3-Spades, what do you bid next with each of these hands:

1. ♠ A K 6 4 ♥ A 8 5 ♦ Q 6 3 ♣ 7 4 2
2. ♠ A K 6 5 4 ♥ K 8 ♦ Q 6 3 ♣ 7 4 2
3. ♠ A K 6 5 4 ♥ K 7 ♦ Q J 10 6 3 ♣ 6
4. ♠ A K Q 5 4 ♥ K 7 ♦ K Q J 8 6 ♣ 6
5. ♠ A K Q 5 4 ♥ None ♦ Q J 10 6 2 ♣ 8 7 4
6. ♠ A K J 5 4 ♥ None ♦ Q J 10 6 2 ♣ A 7 4

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 14.

SUNDAY'S astrological forecast is for a fairly active and enterprising day in the personal life as well as in any business incident to the Sabbath. It is to the advantage to plan and work out new ideas of a progressive, practical and constructive nature for future development. Perhaps the social or romantic engagements may claim major attention, but be wary of strangers.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a rather encouraging year, with new matters developing along definitely productive lines. The creative abilities and initiative are under good planetary vibrations. Do not neglect to demonstrate these because of high pressure in pursuit of pleasure or emotional excitement. Be wary of strangers or untried proposals.

For Monday, April 15.

MONDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of swift-moving events, possibly of an unpredictable and stirring nature. It may be a day of thrills, drama and adventure, with surprising turns to affairs which may be singular, baffling and intriguing. And while the faculties and emotions may be jumping at high tempo, a modicum of repression and vigilance might prevent loss, through litigation or extravagant indulgence, and may placate opposition from superiors.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of large opportunity, with many adventures, changes and dramatic events. These, unless cleverly managed and controlled, may result in loss through litigation, unwise outlay or over-indulgence or enthusiasm.

ENTERTAIN HUSBANDS.

Members of the Utilian club entertained their husbands last night at the home of Mrs. F. C. Dise, Wood street. Mrs. William Robertson was a guest. The evening was spent in contests and cards, after which refreshments were served. The club will meet April 19 with Mrs. Maude Hoover, Wood street.

CHAPTER XV.

"Elaine," Eric's eyes became pleading, "let's not get married right away. Sixteen dollars isn't much money: I want to give you so many things when you're my wife."

"You would be giving me more than that," Elaine told him warmly. "You would be giving me the most complete happiness I've ever known."

Eric shook his head slowly, almost sadly. "I'm just beginning to learn the value, the real value of money, Elaine. But even a person as stupid about that as I am knows you can't live on love. And besides, well, I was thinking about that picture we saw at the Music Hall the other night. You know, the one about the rich man who couldn't take the hard knocks? I don't want that sort of ending for us, Elaine. I want our love to always be as fine and pure and —and holy as it is now. Would you mind so terribly if I asked you to wait a month or so to see if I can really stick it out?"

Mind? Of course she did, and Elaine burned with the desire to tell him so, but after one long glance at his sober face she quelled the urge to do so. Perhaps it would be wiser to wait as he suggested. She knew with a sudden pounding of her heart that she didn't have to worry about him now, and though she yearned to be at his side, helping him to readjust his life, she knew instinctively that the knowledge that she earned more each week than he would only make his life more difficult.

"The first thing you'll have to do," she said briskly, "is to find a cheap room somewhere. Goodness, Eric, it won't be easy to live on such a small salary."

He laughed with a carefree abandon that astonished her. "Who cares?" he said with a flourish of his hand. "Right now I feel happier than I've ever felt in my life. You know, it's really odd, and I suppose fantastic, but all my life I've sort of resented the sheltered, meaningless existence I've led. I've always felt that it wasn't right for a full-grown man to have so much without having done a thing to earn it. But now, Elaine, everything I get I will have earned with my own two hands!"

She shook her head warningly. "You'll find out it isn't as romantic as it sounds, Eric. You'll have to work hard for very little and you won't be able to spend as much for food in a week as you used to spend in a day. But . . ." She suddenly sprang from the chair. "Eric, there are a couple of empty rooms right here in this house! You can live here!"

Without waiting for his answer she rushed across the room and bolted out the door. Eric living right here in the building! What could be a better solution to his living problem than that? She would be near him then, beside him whenever he needed help or advice or encouragement. And he would need all those things at some time or other. Dear, delightful, lovable Eric who was so naive in the ways of practical living.

Her excited voice brought Mamma Gambino and Jane up the steps at a dead run, their faces filled with anxiety. Jane was seething when she learned the reason for all the excitement.

"Good grief!" she exclaimed, following Mamma Gambino into the apartment, "there's no need to frighten the living daylights out of a person."

"Momma Gambina," Elaine asked, turning from Jane, "how much would you charge for that room across the hall?"

"Oh, no you don't!" Jane cried with determination. "That room is reserved for Melvyn."

"Melvyn?" Astonished, Elaine whirled upon her roommate. "But what could be do with that room? He's down in South Carolina."

"But he'll be here next week," Jane told her with a smile. "He's finished up his interneship and is going to work for a doctor right here in the city. And so, he's going to live in that room across the hall."

"No 'ights!" Momma Gambino commanded, eyes flashing. "There's a room oopstairs. One nice room that I letta you man have real cheap."

"What do you call real cheap?" Elaine asked as Eric walked over to join in the discussion. "Eric hasn't such a good job and so you'll have to give him a really low price."

"Five dollars a week," Momma Gambino told her swiftly. "It'sa lovely room. Wit a bigga window on de sout'."

Elaine shook her head, her face stern. Sensing that Eric was about to agree to this price, she placed an admonishing hand on his. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself," she told Momma Gambino reprovingly. "Why, we have four rooms here and we pay only forty dollars a month. You'll have to do much better."

Momma Gambino pursed her lips in a thoughtful frown and then slowly shook her head. Me, I'ma too busy to fight. You tella me de price and if it's right, okay. Ifa not, I tella you."

Elaine took a deep breath and rallied all her courage. "Two dollars a week," she said decisively. Perhaps that was too low, but then that rental would be more in keeping with Eric's salary. After all, sixteen dollars a week wasn't a fortune.

"And you're getting more than the room is worth," Jane put in as the landlady hesitated. "Besides, that's the only vacant room you have left. Wouldn't it be better to rent it for something than have it stand idle, a white elephant on your hands?"

"Tree dollar," Momma Gambino declared after a pause. She waved her hand in the air. "No cheaper. Yes? No? Me, I can not waste de time. Me, I gotto bambino downstairs."

Elaine was at a loss as to how to decide but then, seeing Jane's almost imperceptible nod, she agreed to the price.

Eric stared in wide-eyed admiration at the two girls after Momma Gambino had left. "Gosh," he exclaimed, "how did you ever have the nerve to do that? Two dollars off the original price!"

"It wasn't a question of nerve," Elaine told him with a gay smile. "It was just a question of having to get a room at a rental you can afford on your salary."

She flung a grateful look at Jane who had again sat down before her easel, glad that her roommate had overcome her dislike for Eric long enough to help with Momma Gambino. And then, suddenly, she remembered that Melvyn was coming to live in the house. But why? Surely a doctor earned more than enough to live in a more suitable place.

Jane smiled at her, an amused twinkle in her eyes. She nodded her head in satisfaction, almost as though she were reading Elaine's mind. "Won't it be fun having the two of them in this same house?"

"I hope so," Eric told her, not sensing there was a hidden meaning in her words "I only hope that you won't dislike me too much."

Jane eyed him frankly and Elaine felt herself tremble as she waited for her roommate to speak. Instinctively she knew Jane wouldn't pull her punches.

"I don't dislike you now, Eric," Jane told him softly. "Frankly, I did at first because I didn't like the way you treated Elaine after her accident. I thought you were rather weak then, and I have the suspicion that you are now, but as long as you are sincerely trying to do everything in your power to become independent enough to marry Elaine, why, why it would only be fair for me to give you the chance."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

THE WOMAN who opened the door of the old Carman home in response to our sounding of the ancient knocker was a formidable figure. Tall, raw-boned, with a plain face set in grim lines, and with light blue eyes which held no gleam of either interest or kindness, she was a woman, I told myself, who could never have been attractive, even as a young girl, and the realization had taken its toll of her disposition.

"Is Miss Carman in?" I asked.

I took a card from my case, Lillian one from hers, and we held them out to the guardian of the portal.

"Will you please give these to Miss Carman?" I asked. "We are very anxious to see her upon a very important matter, but we shall need to detain her only a few minutes."

She took the cards, glanced at them critically, and then, without a word, went inside, closing the door after her.

Another second or two, and the door swung open again, upon the same woman we had seen before. Although there was no semblance of a smile upon her face, her whole demeanor was altered. Her eyes no longer regarded us suspiciously, and her voice held almost courteous inflections.

"Miss Carman will see you," she said. "Come this way, please."

We followed her into a room calculated to make one gasp with delight or dismay, depending upon which aspect of it one considered. Large, high-ceilinged, with stately windows crowned with cornices exquisitely outlined in real golf-leaf, it was pitiful in its decay. The almost priceless old wall-paper was torn and stained, the plaster of the ceiling had fallen in several places, and the broad old floor-boards looked in places as if termites were at work upon them. Evidently there was no money for restoration in the menage of Miss Annie Carman.

But the furniture of the room, rubbed by loving hands, was calculated to make any collector gasp with delight. The carpet and draperies were faded but exquisite, and there were family portraits upon the wall which I resolved Dicky must see, for I was sure the name of some famous artist must be signed to them.

Standing in the center of the room was the tiny, almost child-like figure of the woman whose cat I had rescued. The last time I had seen her lined face it had been contorted with anxiety. Now it was composed but bearing a little smile of welcome, one which, I told myself amusedly, a queen might wear in giving audience to her subjects.

She advanced a few steps to meet us, and held out her hand in greeting, first to me, and then to Lillian.

"I have been waiting for you to come to see me for a long time, Mrs. Graham," she said with a subtle note of reproach in her voice. "I thought you had forgotten me, Maria," she called to the woman who had admitted us, "tea if you please, served by the window!"

BRITAIN LOSES 11 PLANES IN NORWAY RAIDS

Take to Air In Scandinavian War, Report Blowing Up Of Munitions Dump.

badly for Germany, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler might try a stab in another direction—possibly into Sweden, Belgium, or the Netherlands.

Military observers contended that the Nazis had biten off more than they could chew when they sank their teeth into Norway.

That little country's deep ravines and scanty communication systems favor defenders in a guerrilla warfare, making impracticable the lightning action of mechanized forces such as subdued Poland in less than a month and moved into Denmark almost without opposition.

However, the Norwegian coastal contours also were forcing the mighty British fleet to play a cat-and-mouse game with the remaining German ships. In the opinion of naval experts, even submarines would be daring destruction if they ventured into the confined fjords to attack.

In view of the geographical difficulties, the turn to heavy reliance on planes was seen as a logical step following the open sea warfare of the previous days.

The British said there was no major naval engagement in the Kattegat Friday, despite Swedish reports of explosions heard in that region.

Another authoritative British source said that the merchant ships of German-occupied Denmark now were technically "of enemy character," and would be permitted to continue trade only under an Allied flag.

The Danish legation in Washington estimated 175 or 200 of the Danish fleet of more than 700 merchant ships were outside the Allied blockade area.

(One Danish official in New York said the Allies "want to take our ships and we are trying to talk them out of it.")

Reported similar Allied plans for Norway's nearly 2,000 merchantmen were delayed, pending clarification of the military situation in Norway.

In Norway, meanwhile, a German force broke through Norwegian defenses between Moss, 35 miles south of Oslo, and Holen, 10 miles closer to the capital.

Since the Germans were advancing toward Oslo they were presumed to be newly-landed troops pushing up the shore of Oslo fjord to join the invaders' expeditionary army.

Advices reaching here said the German advance caught the Norwegians by surprise and they had no time to meet it.

The German advance from Moss was said to have been accomplished in commandered buses and automobiles and to have been impeded, at least briefly, when a bridge was dynamited as the first bus crossed a stream.

The Germans also were reported harassed within Oslo when Norwegians blew up a large dam at nearby Solbergsfors and cut off the city's electricity.

Norwegian sources said telephone and telegraph lines linking Oslo and Berlin also had been put out of commission.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said German warplanes still were pursuing King Haakon and Crown Prince Olav from hiding place to hiding place.

The present whereabouts of the 64-year-old monarch was not disclosed but the newspapers said he had been forced close to the Norwegian-Swedish border.

The newspaper's correspondent said the king told him in a highway meeting, "I have not been out of my boots and I have hardly had a wink" since leaving Oslo Tuesday.

He reported, however, that King Haakon still was in good spirits and determined to stay in his country "as long as one inch remains Norwegian."

An unconfirmed report to the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said that all German warships at Narvik, including four destroyers, had been sunk by Norwegian forces.

A search by Norwegians for five German warships reported off Trondheim was said to have been fruitless, but two British destroyers were seen at Namsos to the north.

According to the Stockholm newspaper Allehanda, British fighting strength in that area also included two British battleships, four cruisers and two other destroyers together with large numbers of aircraft.

KING'S ESCAPE FROM BOMBING RAID RELATED

U. S. Minister Tells of Flight From Norway; Saw Country Despoiled by War.

ment would inform me of their plans later.

"Very soon the French minister made the same request.

"I spoke to the foreign office and was told the (Norwegian) government was going by special train to Hamar and they thought it would be well for me to go along.

"It had been decided that I should follow the government in case Oslo was cut off from communication with the outside world.

"There was not time enough to reach the train the government was taking at 7 a. m. Wives and children of legation and consulate members had arrived and 20 of us had breakfast between 5 and 6 a. m. I telephoned Stockholm and informed the legation what was happening. After breakfast we had to go to air raid shelters. German planes were circling the legation.

At 9:45 a. m. we left for Hamar in four cars. As we approached Lillestroem there was a sudden smack of machine gun fire not very high overhead. A Norwegian plane was chasing a German Heinkel momber.

"As we passed the army field near Lillestroem we saw it had been bombed and the hangars were burning. I believe the Norwegians saved the airplanes.

"At Hamar we were told the royal court of Norway and the British and French ministers and others had proceeded to Hosbjor. So I continued on.

"We arrived (at Hosbjor) at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, finding all members of the British legation.

"I telephoned our legation in Oslo and heard their news. Word came from the government at Hamar ahat it might be better to move toward the Swedish frontier. But after supper it was whispered to me to move to Elverum, as the Germans were within a half hour of Hamar. We rushed back to pack our things.

"On entering Elverum, the king's two cars passed us and a lump came in my throat when I thought what the tragedy of the moment must have meant to him.

"The Hotel Central at Elevrum was full. We went to a farm house a few miles away, near Herodsbygd, and had just settled when word came that the Germans had reached Hamar in nine armored cars.

Awakened By Planes.

"Wednesday morning we were awakened by the roar of six German planes flying toward Elverum, and flying very low. The farmer's wife explained we must buy and cook our own food. We bought eggs, bread and sardines.

"Thursday, planes were centering over Elverum and we heard that we were being caught in a trap, as all bridges were being burned and roads barricaded. We could see Elverum being bombed. There was little noise because they were using incendiary bombs.

"We hoped to get to the road going east of the Swedish border. After a few miles we were stopped by soldiers at a great barricade across the r[illegible] They said, 'go back as fast as you can because we expect seven German armored cars.'

"Two carloads of doctors and Red Cross nurses stood behind them, as at all other barricades we passed. While we retraced our steps, numbers of German Heinkels passed overhead towards Elevrum and when we arrived at Hostjor we saw that Elverum was on fire

Government Gone.

"It burned steadily for hours, but the Norwegian government had gone.

"We took the road eastwards and after several hour found a farm house where a sweet-faced woman offered us shelter if we could all sleep in the parlor.

"Friday morning, bright and early, the owner of the farm searched all the neighboring forests and passable roads and returned with news that soldiers at the barricade would help us pass.

"At the barricade, we got out of the car and squeezed through one end of it. "As we reached Elverum we found the big Red Cross hospital and church standing but the rest of the town demolished.

"From Elverum we drove to Nybergsund and reached there about 3 p. m. We found the hotel razed to the ground. It had been bombed while the king and government were in it.

"Fortunately, they escaped

Plans Return.

"Here again there was no telephone connection so I proceeded to the border. Notwithstanding my diplomatic passport and the American flag on the roof of my car there seemed some doubt in the minds of custom officers but they finally admitted us after considerable telephoning.

"I now plan to return to Norway and get as near the government as I possibly can."

WARNS SWEDEN AGAINST ALLIES

a matter of no importance, it was said.

"No power on earth can drive us out of Norway by force," the spokesman declared.

Sweden Girds to Defend Neutrality.

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— Sweden made urgent preparations today to fight, if necessary, in defense of her neuarality, while German troops and warplanes strengthened the Nazi hold on Norway.

Along the southern Swedish coast, airfields were packed with parked taxicabs and other automobiles to prevent airplanes from landing.

Throughout the country, bomb shelters hastily were being constructed and vehicles converted for burning charcoal in order to save precious gasoline.

The "man-in-the-street," having heard Premier Peir Albin Hansson's broadcast warning last night of Sweden's precarious position, apparently is resolved to back up his declaration that the country will maintain its neutrality, no matter at what sacrifice.

Hansson declared there had been no demand on Sweden for use of her territory by any belligerent nation" but that "if such a demand should ever be made, Sweden would have to refuse to comply with it."

Holland Declines All 'Protection.'

THE HAGUE—(INS)—The Netherlands has no intention of asking for "protection" by any foreign country and no such "protection" has been suggested or offered, it was officially stated today.

A special communique issued by the government press service said:

"All belligerents are well aware of Holland's complete and absolute neutrality.

"This extra affirmation is intended only to put an end to rumors that Holland might ask for or accept foreign protection.

"There is no question of such protection either being asked for or promised."

Semi-official statements said that Holland's greatest enemy is rumor. Ceaseless military practice and precautions taken by the Dutch army are merely to safeguard the Dutch people, it was said, and should not be construed as indicating the imminence of an invasion.

Danish Police Act to Quell Uprising.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark —(UP)—Danish state police today banned all public meetings, indoors and outdoors, throughout the country, after citizens were reported to have "molested" Danish soldiers for failing to do their duty against the German invaders.

Church services and some sports events were exempted and motion picture theaters were not affected.

Premier T. A. M. Stauning insisted that Danish soldiers had acted in full accordance with the government's instructions not to resist the Germans. He said there was no reason for the civilians' attitude.

ANNUAL PARENTS' WEEK-END STAGED AT ASHLAND COLLEGE

ASHLAND — Members of the Ashland College Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. started their "Parents' Week-end" last evening. The program will extend through today and Sunday.

An informal gathering in the social room of Founders' Hall marked the opening of the program last evening, with Harry Brown, of Masontown, president of the Y. M., as chairman.

Dr. R. V. Bollinger of the department of psychology was the speaker, after which special music was sung by the A Cappella choir, under the direction of Dr. Louis E. Pete, and a reading given by Joan Echelberger of Ashland.

A series of special chapel programs were to be given today, with Dr. C. F. Yoder, South American missionary, here on a teaching mission to the school, to be presented as a speaker.

Music will be presented by the chapel choir. This evening, there has been scheduled a dinner program.

Sunday, a special church service has been arranged at the Park Street Brethren church, with Dean W. E. Ronk of the school, to preach the sermon.

was just a joke because I'm always kidding with people anyhow.

"I gave the guy beside me a push with my elbow and said, 'What do you mean?'

"'Give us your money,' the guy repeated. So I repeated, 'What do you mean' and started to give him another jar with my elbow.

"Let 'im have it,' he snarled to the young fellow with the gun and then I knew they meant business so I shoved him hard. Just then I saw his hand coming down at me with a blackjack in it. The rest is pretty hazy. I think some lady kept me from falling to the sidewalk and I guess all that saved me from getting murdered was that the fellow with the gun was afraid to shoot with all the people going by.

"I called 'Police' and then it seemed that everybody was calling 'Police.' A crowd gathered around and somebody chased the two men up the alley to Walnut street. He saw them get in a car and got close enough to get the license number which he telephoned to police headquarters."

(Police today were checking that license number, reported as Pennsylvania D3X409, with Pennsylvania officials. Presumably stolen, the tag was a dealer's plate. The car was a late model maroon sedan, Police Chief Meade K. Bates asserted.

(A police radio warning broadcast throughout the state failed to trap the bandits who were reported to have fled east from the city.)

"They got the money in the pouch," Phil recalls, "but not the money in my pocket."

Still dazed from the blow Phil returned to the cafe and started to work.

"Pretty soon I noticed blood running down my shirt front and somebody called the doctor. He took me to the hospital for treatment and then home. It only took one clamp to close the wound but I guess a small artery was cut because I bled a lot and the story got around that I had been shot. . . .

"I was just lucky I wasn't."

Today Phil has a headache and two firm resolutions.

One—he's going to accept some of the protection police have offered him repeatedly for years. And two—he'll look twice before he thumps pleasant looking customers on the shoulder "because on the second look those guys didn't seem to be any amateurs."

There are 29,500,000 motor vehicles in the United States.

RESOLUTION NO. 40-39

By Mr. Berg:

Declaring it necessary to improve East Fourth Street and West Fourth Street, to wit: East Fourth Street from Diamond Street to Main Street and West Fourth Street from Main Street to approximately the west line of Inlot Nos. 6343 and 7581, by repaving the roadway, resetting and reconstructing curbing, constructing necessary headers, storm drainage, etc.

Great Dizzy Must Produce, Says Hartnett

Great One's Conduct O. K. If He Can Win Games.

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO —(AP)— Dizzy Dean, the greatest one-man show on earth, hasn't done anything that a few mound victories won't cure.

* * *

But can he produce those victories? That's what Manager Gabby Hartnett, owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, his teammates and lots of Cub partisans would like to know.

* * *

"We're interested chiefly in whether Dean can pitch and win," explained Wrigley. "If he can do that we can put up with a lot of departures from orthodox conduct, I suppose."

The Cub owner added he expected insurbordination from Dizzy.

"We bought that when we bought him. But he'll be fined by Hartnett whenever his conduct merits it," Wrigley said.

Dizzy stepped out of bounds last Tuesday in Wichita, Kans., getting on the train almost an hour after curfew. Hartnett slapped a $100 fine on the eccentric pitcher. Dizzy said he wouldn't pay, but his wife, Patricia, soon changed his tune. Mrs. Dean said Dizzy had been a bad boy, that Hartnett was right and that her hubby would plank down the $100.

So, in Dizzy's own words, "everything's just swell with Gabby and me—I just want to get out there and pitch."

Dean won only 13 games altogether in 1938 and 1939. He was rapidly becoming tagged as a washout and a real has-been when he silenced his critics for the time being by tossing five innings of shutout ball against the St. Louis Brown's last Monday.

* * *

Dizzy immediately proclaimed his arm was in great shape. Some observers figure he will be of little value to the Cubs on the mound, but as a headline figure, he doubtless will make a strong bid to defend his prized title.

Fans Welcome Redlegs Home

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Cincinnati baseball fans, willing to forgive and if not quite forget last October, welcomed "our boys" home today for an attempted preview game against the Detroit Tigers at Crosley field.

* * *

Either rained or frozen out of scheduled exhibition tilts for the past four out of five days, the Reds were ready to toss in Bucky Walters for initial mound duty against the Tigers' Tommy Bridges or Buck Newsome if the weatherman says the word today.

The two clubs are scheduled again tomorrow here and then the Redlegs lay off until the season inaugural Tuesday with the Chicago Cubs as guests at Crosley field.

Although Manager Bill McKechnie has not committed himself definitely, Paul Derringer is almost a sure bet to pitch against the Cubs on the basis of his neat four-inning trick last Wednesday against the Boston Red Sox in the last appearance of the Reds.

The Reds and Tigers were forced to cancel appearances of inclement weather to put it mildly.

"What kind of baseball weather is this?" snorted Ernie Lombardi when he found the radiator of his automobile frozen up.

The feature event of Monday night's card pits Jimmy Heffner of Sherman, Texas, against Georgie Becker, the young star from New York City in the main event.

The special semi-final pits "Bull" Marino of New York and Jack Smithers, the ex-Masked Marvel against each other in a battle to see which will get a crack at "the Hun," the undefeated unknown here.

White Sox, Cubs Ready for Debut

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Chicago White Sox and Cubs, with a little co-operation from the weatherman, will make their 1940 debut before their home town followers.

* * *

The inaugural was set for yesterday but a wintry blast, accompanied by snow flurries, cancelled the engagement.

* * *

ALHALON IN DEBUT

LEXINGTON, Ky.—(U.P.)—Alhalon, 3-year-old Kentucky derby candidate owned by Al C. Ernst of Cleveland, made his 1940 racing debut a winning one yesterday when he defeated a small field including other derby eligibles in the second race, a six-furlong trip over the muddy Keeneland track.

Eleven Experts Pick Yanks Second

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Those Yankees can't be so good. They haven't convinced 11 baseball experts they are any better than a second-place club. Of course the other 66 writers taking part in the Associated Press poll selected New York to finish first in the American league, but at least it wasn't unanimous.

It is pretty well agreed by the voters that the champions and the Boston Red Sox will finish 1-2, meaning the Red Sox will be No. 2. Nine of the dissenters placed the Red Sox first, another liked the Cleveland Indians for the top spot, and still another put a load on Jimmy Dykes by naming his White Sox as the pennant winner.

The Yanks piled up 605 points in the poll, based on eight points for first place, seven for second, etc. The Red Sox rolled up 536, which was more than the third-place Cleveland Indians. Detroit had a margin of only 13 points over the White Sox for fourth place, but Washington, Philadelphia and St. Louis won their sixth, seventh and eighth spots without much competition.

Incidentally, the first division teams were named in the same order as in the 1939 poll. Among the last four clubs, however, the Athletics, picked to finish last in 1939, were handed seventh place, in a trade of positions with St. Louis, and Washington, picked for fifth a year ago, was shoved back to sixth.

The Browns did pretty well in their bid for a unanimous last-place choice, but 10 voters picked the Athletics for that doubtful honor, and two others saw Washington as the tailender.

Cleveland High School Cancels Mansfield Meet

John Ford Rhodes high school of Cleveland, which was to meet the Mansfield Red Streaks at Stadium field today, cancelled the track meet because of inclement weather. The Mansfield Reserve track team, which was scheduled to meet the Bucyrus Reserves yesterday, cancelled its meet because of the snow. The two teams will meet Tuesday at Bucyrus, providing weather permits.

Unable to Hit 3,000 In Tourney

Last Year 13 Teams Beat The "Three Grand" Mark In Cleveland.

DETROIT, — (INS) — With more than 4,000 of the total entry of 6,073 teams having rolled, a 3,000 total was still the elusive figure today in the American Bowling Congress championships as a score of previous titleholders were on hand and followers predicted a shakeup in the high ten leaders.

Last year at Cleveland, 13 teams beat the "three grand" mark but only the Kling's Beer of Flint, Mich., have come near that mark with a 2,983 tally.

* * *

Joe Gills Insurance, of Chicago, paced the 80 teams in yesterday's action, taking over ninth spot with 2,912. Joe Wilman, 1939 all-events champion, gave his Chicago Budweisers a 581 total as the team chalked up 2,859. Maxie Stien, member of the Warner Brothers Pictures of Burbank, Cal., cut loose with 21 strikes in the doubles to score 725 and tie for fifth place with 1901 in the all-events.

WESTERN CONFERENCE TO PLAY DOUBLEHEADERS

CHICAGO —(AP)— Three baseball doubleheaders were on tap in the western conference today.

Indiana booked two games with Ohio State at Columbus, Northwestern at Illinois and Wisconsin at Chicago. Cold weather prevented single games yesterday, producing today's twin bills. None has played a conference game yet.

Chilly Weather Greets Indians

Ball Club Arrives In Cleveland for Its Closing Exhibition Game With Giants.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians received a chilly reception from the weather man as they arrived home early today from spring training trip.

The hour (12:57 a. m.) reduced the list of tangible receptionists, which consisted principally of reporters, photographers, and wives of players.

Manager Oscar Vitt reiterated Bob Feller would pitch the opener in Chicago Tuesday, with Al Milnar and Willis Hudlin scheduled for the other two games of the Chisox series. Johnny Allen is due to hurl the home inaugural against Detroit Friday.

Weather permitting, the Redskins will close their exhibition schedule tomorrow at League park with the New York Giants. Allen and Mike Naymick have been selected to face the National leaguers, who arrived on the same train with the Indians.

The players were in high spirits in spite of the cold weather.

Hal Trosky, big first baseman, said his right hand, struck by a pitched ball, was still sore, but that he expected to be ready for the opener.

"I never felt better in my life," Allen said. "The old arm has regained its strength and I expect to be ready to take my regular turn on the mound right away."

Shortstop Russ Peters said he had just about abandoned hopes of winning a regular job and termed Lou Boudreau and Ray Mack "the best keystone combination I've ever seen in action."

The Indians will leave for Chicago Monday afternoon.

STORCK SCHEDULED TO BE ELECTED PRESIDENT

NEW YORK —(INS)— Carl Storck apparently will be elected president of the National league football league since George Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, announced that Storck would get the job. Marshall has been chief objector to Storck who has been acting president.

Marshall said that "harmony was the word" and it looked as though Storck was president of the league for an indefinite term. The actual election will come Sunday.

'It Seems That Suckers Will Never Learn'---McLemore

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—A tip on a Kentucky Derby horse travels faster than a humming bird hurrying for home. Three years ago the public choice was Billionaire. He finished 20th and last to War Admiral. Two years ago the smart boys whispered the name of Bull Lea. He trailed in eighth place, 16 lengths behind Lawrin. Last year the wise money was on Technician. This bold bucko ended fifth behind Johnstown.

* * * * *

Still it seems, the suckers never learn. This year a new hot thing is riding the crest of the winter books. The name of this beauty is Mioland, the Brenda Diana Duff Frazier of 1940. In the short space of a single month this one-horse-incident has dropped from 100-1 to 40-1 to 15-1 to 12-1—and still is sinking.

* * * * *

The boys in the back room call Mioland an international incident because he is the closest thing the turf can offer to parallel a Rome-Berlin axis. He is the son of Mio D'Arezzo, an Italian stallion who did most of his early racing in Germany. Mio D'Arezzo was a helluva horse. He won 6 six furlongs and he won at a mile and a half, carrying up to 138 pounds in doing it. He was imported to the United States by H. W. Ray of Hillsboro, Ore.

Since emigrating, Mio D'Arezzo has produced several sons. All of them were ordinary until Mioland came up to the races and began to run. Run he did. In fact, to date, he has run faster than any Oregon horse ever bred. But this fact alone can hardly be considered as a true qualification for the Derby, the biggest race in the country.

What I would like to know, and, incidentally, what most of the real turf experts want to know, is why Mioland is getting this tremendous backing.

Racing conservatives say that Mioland's eyes are too narrow for any really great horse. As well, his record is merely mediocre. The Oregon-bred has run 11 times to date. Although in 1939 he won three of his five trips to the post and never was out of the money, this season he has won but two of his six attempts. But, after his third start this year, he was purchased for $15,000 by Charles S. Howard of San Francisco, the owner of Seabiscuit and Kayak II, and was given into the hands of Trainer Tom Smith.

These two gentlemen may not be actually be miracle men but apparently they are so regarded by the betting public. In his first race under the Howard banner, Mioland finished 13th. In his next, the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby, he closed a dozen lengths from the half to finish a flying fourth. The next time out he won.

* * * * *

This was in the $10,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap, the getaway day feature at the great green California plant. In that race, Mioland defeated every top horse who had whipped him in the Santa Anita Derby. He finished the mile and a sixteenth in 1:42 2-5, a length and a quarter in front. The winter book parade has dated from there.

* * * * *

Where this parade will end, I frankly don't know. We do know where Billionaire, Bull Lea, and Technician ended. We know, as well, where my choices usually end. After all, I was on Billionaire, Bull Lea and Technician. I gave them to you as money-

COLONEL, IT WAS A PLEASURE, MASSAGING THOSE HOODLUMS!
A GREAT JOB YOU DID —AND I'M HOPING IT MAY HAVE DISCOURAGED THEIR TRYING --
--ANY MORE ROUGH STUFF, BUT, I'VE BEEN THINKING — MAYBE SOME ONE HAD BETTER KEEP AN EYE ON MY LITTLE SECRETARY! DON'T WANT TO SAY ANYTHING TO HER THOUGH — MIGHT FRIGHTEN HER!
MIGHT BE WISE! —LET ME THINK —WHO'D BE A GOOD MAN TO DO IT?
THE GOOD OLD COLONEL IS CERTAINLY THOUGHTFUL OF OTHERS! BUT, WILL THEY BE IN TIME ?

STROLLING PIG LANDS IN JAIL

HAYWARRD, Cal. —(NS)— This little pig went to market and this little pig stayed home—but this little pig just went for a stroll, and got into a peck of trouble.

Hayward police, summoned out on the highway a quarter mile from town, found a snarl of honking automobiles, vainly trying to get past a two-month-old porker which was shuttling vigorously back and forth across the highway.

After considerable impromptu training for the very next police picnic at which a greased pig contest is held, officers finally corraled the unidentified culprit in a gunny sack and hauled him off to jail.

GAMBLER LEAPS

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C.—(NS)—When a Vancouver hindu, Mangal Singh, leaped to his death from a bridge he left a suicide note which read in part:

"I am leaving this world after having a very good time. Nobody should get mad. Nobody should gamble. Whatever the wise men wrote about gambling is true."

TAKES WINDING

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa.—(NS)— Two caretakers work one hour weekly winding Williamsport's courthouse clock and the bell chiming the hour. The clock is operated by three weights totaling 1,100 pounds, and the caretakers must "crank" for an hour to wind them.

ADVANCES MARK STOCK TRADING IN SLOW DEALS

Federal Reserve Reports Store Sales Fall Five Per Cent Under Year Ago.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK - Slight advances predominated in today's early stock market trading.

With dealings slow at the opening, gainers included American Airlines, Lockheed, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone and Du Pont. Down a shade were U. S. Steel and Bethlehem.

Financial quarters studied the summary of the federal reserve board which disclosed the country's department store sales in the week ended April 6, fell 5 per cent under the corresponding period a year ago.

Helpful were the figures of the federal housing administration indicating residential building throughout the nation was continuing at a high rate.

South Seas Comedy.

A sparkling selection of popular new melodies is heard in the comedy "Road to Singapore," which opens today at the Ohio theater. "Too Romantic," a torchy number, "Sweet Potato Piper," novelty tune, and "Kaigoon," are among the best. Two others are "Captain Custard" and "The Moon and the Willow Tree." This gay story finds Bing Crosby and Bob Hope singing their way to the South Seas to get away from girls. However they run into Dorothy Lamour and trouble starts afresh.

Laughton Sings and Dances.

A story of the London show world in the days when a blackout was the end of a vaudeville skit instead of a precaution against air raids, is told in the new Charles Laughton picture, 'Sidewalks of London," which opens today at the Madison theater. He is co-starred with the most widely-discussed actress of the day, Vivien (Scarlett O'Hara) Leigh. This picture was made in England, and in it Laughton sings and dances, for the first time in a movie. "Geronimo" a story of the mightiest of Indian wars, is the co-feature.

Fast-Action Pictures.

"His Girl Friday," the popular newspaper picture, starring Cary Grant, Rosalind Russell and Ralph Belamy will be shown at the Park theater beginning Sunday. "The fastest-talking picture on record" is Hollywood's description of the romantic comedy drama. Bobby Breen, the youthful singing star, is seen in the co-feature, "Escape to Paradise." Colorful and unsual setting contribute to the charming effect which offers a vivid depiction of present-day life in South America.

Making of Phillippines.

Starring Gary Cooper, Andrea Leeds and David Niven, the adventure drama, "The Real Glory," opens Sunday at the Majestic theater. This is an exciting tale of the Philippine Scouts and their heroic bravery at the conclusion of the Spanish-American war, when the Philippines were overrun with insurrectionists and religious fanatics. "Good Girls Go to Paris," with Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell in the leads, is a comedy in the continental manner, which co-features "The Real Glory."

Technicolor Cartoon.

The animated cartoon once again comes to the fore as a medium of bringing a full-length story to the screen in the presentation of "Gulliver's Travels," a technicolor picture. This opens at the Ritz Sunday. In his story of "Gulliver" Dean Swift created characters which have lived in the public mind ever since he wrote his book, two centuries ago. "The Cat and the Canary," with Paulette Goddard and Bob Hope in the leads is the co-feature.

COLD WELCOME

Kelly Returned to Mt. Gilead On Stolen Auto Charge.

MT. GILEAD — Clyde Kelly's welcome in a forced return to county jail was as cool as the snow that blanketed the county in a late spring snowstorm.

Returned from Marietta on a stolen auto charge, Kelly, 16, a juvenile for whom many had expressed sympathy on his original commitment in December on a forgery charge, had to make explanations to:

Sheriff Oscar George, probate court custodian, who found Kelly a job in a pottery store and procured him board and room until Kelly drew his first pay.

Harold West, the pottery employer who took the youth on in the plant on the sheriff's say-so.

Kelly drew his first pay a week ago, disappeared that day as West's auto also disappeared, is said to have told Marietta police he traded West's car for another in Parkersburg, W. Va., prior to his arrest in Marietta on a pick-up.
